1. Margaret; Leonard; Penny; and Manny went bowling last Friday night.

Semi-colons are not used to separate a list of items. Replace semi-colons with commas.

2. The dog chased the cat the owner yelled at the dog to sit.

Those are two complete thoughts, so they should be in two sentences or joined by a conjunction or semi-colon. Put semi-colon after cat, or put semi-colon after cat and capitalize "The" before "owner."

3. Then Paul asked, Did you read that book for English class yet?

This sentence doesn't have the proper punctuation for dialogue. Add quotation marks before "Did" and after the question mark.

4. You should rent three movies, buy a video game, and get a take-and-bake pizza and we'll be at your house at 6.

No errors.

5. Its definitely going to rain today.

The sentences uses the possessive form of "it," not the contraction. Change "Its" to "It's."

5. Hey, get back here?

The sentence is not a question. Change the question mark to an exclamation point
